HEALTH AND WELLNESS TIPS

Spring is almost here! The cold, snow, and ice is almost done, at least we can hope. With it still being slightly cold outside, it can be tempting to stay in bed curled up. The days are slowly getting longer which is helpful for our biological clocks and the weather is slowly getting warmer! Sleeping can be a struggle for some, but hopefully by following these tips it can make sleeping just a little bit easier. Tip 1: Follow a regular sleep schedule, Tip 2: Don't watch TV or use your computer, phone, or tablet right before bed, Tip 3: Avoid caffeine late in the day, Tip 4: Don't worry about sleeping. With these tips, hopefully we can all try to get more restful sleep. Sleep isn't just about how many hours you are getting each night, but also how you feel the next morning after waking up.

Take Charge Tip

If you are considering a pet, look into adopting from a local shelter!

Adopting a pet can bring many health benefits such as lowering blood pressure and reducing stress, while encouraging physical and social activity. Pets can also help manage depression and loneliness while giving us a sense of companionship. There are many different types of pets out there. Here are a few different types of pets that you could consider bringing into your home:

Dogs: Dogs are a loving, faithful, and protective friend. They are perfect for active adults. Dogs reduce blood pressure, lower stress levels, and increase self-esteem. Dogs are the most popular service animal due to their patience and ability to learn quickly.

Cats: Cats are perfect for adults who are looking for a loving pet who can care mostly for themselves. Cats are best known to boost immune systems, create a sense of calm, and are low-maintenance pets.

Birds: There are a wide variety of birds. Birds can be great for adults who are looking for a pet that requires little hands-on care. These pets have many health benefits including social interaction, lowering stress, and increasing empathy.

Fish: Fish are great if you are looking for a pet that requires very little maintenance. Fish are lovely to look at and have very diverse personalities. These pets are known to improve mental health, decrease heart rate, and reduce anxiety.

Did you know?

Pets help their owners reduce stress and loneliness and feel more connected.
